

Ring Gallery

Rings can be made with an individual's style in mind. Unusual shapes and textures add to the intrigue of each artist's interpretation of a design. Handmade rings that are less than perfect have a certain charm. They look like antiquities made by silversmiths before modern machinery made it possible to mass produce rings and other jewelry items.

Organic Ring #21 by Shahasp Valentine. From the "Organic Series" of naturally inspired forms. Made with fine silver PMC® with black pearl. Photo: Hap Sakwa

Celechée Earrings by Shahasp Valentine. Made from standard PMC®, pressed into three different molds making twelve components, which were assembled into the finished earrings, using white sapphires. Photo: Hap Sakwa

Grande Fleur de Lis Necklace #6 by Shahasp Valentine. Made from standard PMC®, pressed into 5 different molds, making 20 parts, which were assembled into the final piece, using lab-grown rubies. Photo: Hap Sakwa

Metal Clay Techniques 59

Wave Necklace #14 by Shahasp Valentine. Hand-formed fine silver and 24K gold PMC® with freshwater pearls and a white sapphire. Photo: Shahasp Valentine

The Art of METAL CLAY

Techniques for Creating Jewelry and Decorative Objects

SHERRI HAAB